6.2 Description of process steps

1.	A thorough assessment of employees' current competence and gap analysis has to be carried out to determine if a training and development need exist.
2.	Not all employee gaps are training problems and hence need to be properly identified if there are other system problems that has to be addressed.
3.	Once training needs are identified, its type and schedule should be defined and approved by the DGM.
4.	If there is no expertise or material available within the Company, then external resources will be used.
4.1	Carry out identification of training institutions who can give the training.
4.2	Based on our requirement the best training intuition shall be selected.
4.3	The Company shall sign & inter in to an agreement with the selected institution.
5.	If the training is to be given internally then the responsible person/department has to be identified. The selected individual should have a good knowledge of the subject matter, good communication & presentation skill.
6.	Once the trainer is identified, the PD shall coordinate the facilities and accommodations necessary for the training.
7.	Training shall be conducted to the targeted employees by trainer either internally/by the selected external source as necessary.
8.	Collect feedback from employees who attend the training with regard to the way it is communicated/conducted. If it turned out to be unsatisfactory, it should be reported to the concerned department or training institution for future improvement.
9.	Once training is conducted successfully, training & personnel records shall be updated.
